REPUBLICANS HAVE ROUSING RALLY.

work. They are permitted to exist by the tariff. You need a man in congress to look after your interests properly, and you have one in Edwin W. Higgins, of whom it can be said he voted against Cannon. The tariff is New England's business.
Tells What Mr. Jodoin Didn't Do.
I am told, said the speaker, that Raymond J. Jodoin is making his canvass in this district because of his work on the stocks for motorists. He said Mr. Jodoin was not a conspicuous member of the last general assembly. He did his duty but that about all. Mr. Jodoin introduced a bill in behalf of the motorists and spoke on that bill, though others made better arguments. The men themselves were the best arguments. The bill Mr. Jodoin introduced never passed, but the bill which was adopted was written by me, said Mr. Chandler, and I presented it to the committee. I wrote it, I reported it to the house and made a speech for it there. It was held up in the senate for some time, where an amendment was put on. After a conference the motionmen got what they deserved. Mr. Chandler declared it was not fair to only vote for Mr. Paul, and in this case he is Peter. Mr. Jodoin held the blanket and sponge and the other ran the race.
Remedy for the Trouble.
Much has been said about the use of money in the campaign by the republicans, but he said he had yet to hear come from any democratic source a suggestion of a remedy for the evil, if it exists. He resented the indiscriminate characterization of the delegates at the republican convention as political mercenaries, as made by

MRS. EDWIN FAY, Franklin Square

John H. Davis for Senator

John H. Davis, of Preston, is not a novice in public life. He has represented his town four years in the legislature and was for four years Superintendent of the Capitol, at Hartford, and has as wide an acquaintance with public duties and public men as any man in this part of the State, and is respected for his uprightness and loyalty to principle. To put it straight: he is the kind of a man the corrupters of public servants never venture to invite to participate in corrupt practices—a man with a conscience and a true conception of his duty to his party and his constituents. He stands true to the republican platform, and may be depended upon to loyally support every republican pledge. He is the kind of a Senator the State needs at Hartford and the kind that will give his party a good record. The voters of the 19th Senatorial District should rally to his support and give him the majority a candidate of such merit deserves.

be found these words, referring to the sentence which I have just quoted: "This sentiment would be coldly received, to say the least, by labor unions desirous of securing a workmen's compensation act, such as the New York legislature passed and Governor Hughes signed about three months ago. The fellow servant rule is not a divinely inspired precept any more than the contributory negligence or assumption of risk rule. Nor is general assent to 'considerations of right and justice,' as applied in particular circumstances, necessarily final and irrevocable in the legislature. It was untimated in maltrating fifty years before for flouting their 'considerations of right and justice' by teaching negro children how to read and write."

Judge Baldwin Mum.
In one speech, and in one speech only, if I have followed him correctly, has Judge Baldwin made any reference to the workingman's compensation act advocated in the platforms of both political parties. His endorsement of it was in the vaguest and most general terms, and now as I have said, he takes the high and mighty position of declining to answer any questions asked him, either by the state Business Men's association or the utilities bill or by the labor unions on the legislation in which they are interested.

Goodwin's Position Clear.
I want to repeat that Mr. Goodwin's position is clear and unequivocal on both of these measures. The English language could not make it plainer. He has avoided nothing, held nothing back. This legislation was first brought before the people of the state by the late Gov. George L. Dyer. Mr. Goodwin was his executive secretary—practically the assistant governor. He worked and advised with Governor Dyer in the two great measures that brought this legislation before the people of Connecticut. He stood by it when it needed friends, not when he needed friends. A friend in need is a friend indeed. His cousin and political intimate, Senator Walter L. Goodwin, when he was in the legislature, was the last session of the general assembly for this legislation, and has been publicly thanked for his action by the labor bodies of his city.
Gentlemen, this is a large issue. It is your issue. This is the first time the republican party even has declared for it in its platform. Although I am a republican, I ask you, the wage-earners of Norwich, not to give some republicans who are secretly opposed to it the excuse for beating it because there is an indifferent democratic governor in the executive chambers.

PAST NOBLE GRANDS.
Thames Association Met in This City—
One Initiated.

Thames Rebekah Past Noble Grand's association held its November meeting Tuesday afternoon in the Hope lodge room at 204 Pelham street. The meeting was held in the afternoon, having a good number attending, of whom ten were from Orient and Osprey lodges of New London and one from Groton. Mrs. Margaret Hart of Hope lodge, the president, was in the chair.
After the work the seventeen members present were regaled with a chicken supper served by the past noble grands of the lodge. The next meeting will be with Osprey lodge of New London, but the date has not been decided upon.

What Judge Baldwin Thought.
Less than two years ago this is what Judge Baldwin thought about the fellow servant law. It will be found in the case of Hoke vs. New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, in which he upset the federal employers' liability act passed during the administration of President Roosevelt for the purpose of remedying this very evil. Mind you, I do not criticize the decision. I assume that it was good law. Judge Baldwin is an honorable man and an able and upright judge. But he said something in that decision which I feel it my duty to say what the lawyers call an "obiter dictum." He said that the fellow servant rule "is a part of that general American feeling of lawlessness and disregard of right and justice that have been generally accepted by the people of the United States."
Not Right or Just.
I say, gentlemen, that this rule of law is not "right," it is not "just," and it is not "generally accepted by the people of this country." It is a presumptuous and making this statement. Not at all. It is not my statement. Listen to the criticism of a responsible legal magazine of high standing, a publication known as "Law Notes." In an editorial found on page 121 of the issue of October, 1910, will

MANY ADVANTAGES OF GALES FERRY SITE.

Land Offered by Charles H. Brown to Be Inspected This Week by Committee on Woman's College.

Charles H. Brown states that he expects the committee on the woman's college for Connecticut to pay a visit of inspection to the large tract of land he has offered them at Gales Ferry, as a site for the college. It is probable that the visit there will be made the same day they go to New London. There are many recommendatory points for the site at Gales Ferry, which the committee will no doubt take into consideration. They may be summarized as follows:
The prettiest site on the prettiest river in the state, and now as I have said, there is approximately a half mile of river front.
It is admirably situated and adapted for aquatic sports, which is a valuable feature, not a prime requisite for a college.
There is a deep water channel to the property and there are landing facilities.
For a wide angle there is an unsurpassed view of the river.
There are no right of way obstructions to the water front.
The railroad running through the property is in a deep cut, practically a subway.
There is a large sandy bathing beach.
There is a spectacular plateau and scenic park on the bluff between the railroad and the river.
There are 25 acres of the choicest park land and scenery.
There is a large slightly plain and an unobstructed water view for several miles.
There is a large tract of glacial boulders and pasture scenery.
There are facilities for an unlimited water supply.
There are easy facilities for electric lights and prospects for a state highway.
It is four miles from and in sight of New London, and is from seven to eight miles from Norwich, and its establishment there would bring rapid transit from both cities.
The proposed site is most accessible and yet a secluded spot—right in the world, yet right out of it. It breathes the spirit of repose and seclusion, and is in close proximity to an abundance of picturesque and rural scenery.

MISSIONARY CIRCLE.

Home and Foreign Society of the First Baptist Church Meets.

The Home and Foreign Missionary circle of the First Baptist church held their November meeting Tuesday with Mrs. Minnie Amburn of West Main street. The president, Mrs. William Gleichert, presided, opening with prayer and reading the 46th Psalm. The hymn "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" was sung. The minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report were read and approved.

The subject of the meeting, Home Work, was taken up and several interesting papers were read, as follows: The Missionary at the Gate, Mrs. Leonard Park; The Log of the First House, Mrs. Mary Dolbeare; A Study in Proportion, Mrs. Hattie Sargent; Monthly Missionary Letter, Mrs. J. Edwin Olcott; Touring in a Motor Boat, Mrs. William Gleichert.
The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

HEBREW SCHOOL NOT OPENED.
New York Principal Decides Not to Locate in This City.

Those in charge of the arrangements for opening a Hebrew school in this city are expecting that they may be ready to hold the first sessions next week. The New York principal, whom it had been expected to secure for a teacher, came here and looked the field over, but decided that it was not favorable for him to practice his profession along with his teaching, so that he declined the position. Secretary A. Crutcher is in communication with another teacher, who may be secured. Meanwhile the two collectors, Jacob Gordon and N. S. Penick, are raising the money needed for the school.
